PERSONALISATION – HOW HAS IT CHANGED YOUR LIFE?

Opportunities for Involvement in National Developments in Mental Health

CASE STUDIES WANTED FOR HOUSING & EMPLOYMENT PROJECT

If you have personal experience of mental distress and have personal experience of having had help with your housing and employment aspirations, self-directed support, direct payments, personal and individual budgets / health budgets or provide friends/family carer support to somebody who has, then this may be for you. We are looking at the innovative and different ways people have used these budgets and what impact they have had / are having on people's housing and / or employment pathways, training opportunities and related activities and situations?

The National Mental Health Development Unit (NMHDU) – www.nmhdu.org.uk provides national support for implementing mental health policy to improve mental health and mental health services funded by the Department of Health and NHS. They need the whole of their work to involve people who have a range of mental health experiences and the friends-and-family who support them, so the best possible results can be achieved for all concerned. The National Involvement Project (NIP) is a coalition of mental health organisations (above) working with NMHDU to involve service users and carers in all aspects of their work.
